THE REPUBLICAN TARIFF POLICY

Handicaps Americans and Favors Foreigners.

Aside from the gross injustice of which manufacturers are guilty when they utilize their protection to compel home consumers to pay more than a fair price for goods and more than foreigners are regularly paying; aside, also, from the base ingratitude of the trusts which smile the hand that feeds them, as they do when they take the protection bonus from the American people and then charge them higher prices for goods than they charge foreigners, there is a sound business reason why this practice should be discouraged rather than encouraged by tariff legislation. These reasons hold good even if the generally accepted theories of protection be true.

It is a bad economic policy for a nation so to legislate that its own manufacturers and workers must pay more for materials and goods than is paid by foreigners for these same materials and goods.

1. Such a policy handicaps home manufacturers and producers and gives their foreign competitors a great advantage, not only in foreign markets, but often in home markets, even when tariff duties are fairly high.

2. Instead of encouraging and building up home industries, such a policy discourages and drags them down by enabling goods to be manufactured more cheaply abroad; foreign manufacturers, to whom our trusts sell unfinished goods at lower prices than our own manufacturers can obtain the same goods at, are naturally, because of their cheaper materials, able to undersell American manufacturers.

3. Such a policy tends strongly to induce manufacturers, who might otherwise do an extensive export business, to establish branch factories in foreign countries, where they can manufacture more cheaply; where they can, in fact, get more benefits from "protection" than they get at home. That hundreds of branch factories are being established abroad for this reason is certain. Numerous articles and editorials have appeared on this subject in the trade and commercial papers, during the last three or four years. A notable article appeared in the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science in January, 1904. It was written by Mr. S. N. D. North, Director of the Census. It tells of scores of big manufacturing plants that have recently established branch factories in foreign countries.

4. Such a policy leads to retaliatory tariffs on the part of foreign countries which wish to save their industries from some of the evils of what is called the "dumping" process. These high tariffs tend to keep our products out of foreign markets and also encourage the establishment of branch factories abroad.

CONVICT MADE GOODS.

Prison Made Goods to be Marked for Identification.

In an opinion handed down in the case of the People vs. Hawkins, Judge Alton B. Parker, while presiding over the New York Court of Appeals, passed upon the question of convict made goods. He said:

"It is now too late to consider the subject generally from the point of view of the political economist, for the people, in whom reside all power, have set at rest that question so far as this State is concerned. This statute neither prohibits nor attempts to prohibit other States, or the citizens of other States, from putting prison made goods upon our markets; nor does it prohibit our own citizens from buying or selling them; if it did, then, concededly, the statute would be in violation of the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution and void; it simply requires that prison made merchandise shall be so branded that our citizens shall know where the goods they are buying were made."

"This they have a right to know, for they voted to burden themselves with additional taxation rather than longer to permit a competition which they regarded as a public wrong, and they are, therefore, entitled to such legislation as will permit them to know the truth in regard to articles offered them for sale, in order that they may not, through lack of information, have forced upon them that which they would not buy advisedly. The commerce clause of the Federal Constitution does not stand in the way of their having such information, inasmuch as the Constitution of this State establishes a public policy in the working out of which the Legislature may go to this extent at least under the police power of the State."

PRaise FROM THE ENEMY.

Paying his respects to Judge Parker, J. Elmer Passet, as temporary chairman of the Republican New York State convention, at Saratoga, said: "Of the Democratic candidate I have
